

Table of Contents:

Family Planner:

- I. Calendars - monthly & weekly
- II. To do list- for home, school, personal and other
- III. Emergency information and important contacts
- IV. Meal planning (with grocery list)
- V. Chore lists
- VI. Health records

Goals and Priorities Planner:

- VII. Getting started with setting goals and priorities
- VIII. Family goal setting
- IX. Individual student evaluation and goal setting
- X. Character building scriptures
- XI. Priority assessment sheet

School Planning & Records:

- a. Record-keeping information
- b. Record of curriculum used
- c. Field trip plans
- d. Books read
- e. Volunteer record
- f. Weekly assignment sheets
- g. Scheduling
- h. Sample record-keeping grading sheet for each child/subject (download grade calculator spreadsheet from flash drive)
- i. Report cards
- j. Support group/co-op information
- k. Informal learning style evaluation with tips for teaching
- l. Brainstorming ideas for future
- m. Ideas to help your child love learning
- n. Minnesota homeschooling laws & link to reporting forms
- o. Expense reports and receipts

Spiritual Growth:

- XII. Devotional & journal
- XIII. Prayer journal

Welcome to the Homeschool Life: All-in-One Planner!

Being organized is essential for homeschool moms! We have a lot to keep track of in order to keep our home and homeschool running smoothly! I'm not naturally very organized, but with God's help, I have learned some great organizational ideas to help keep our life and homeschool organized over the years.

I hear a lot of homeschool moms saying they feel disorganized or that they're struggling to keep up, and they ask me to help them become more organized. That's how this All-In-One Planner came to be. I'm simply sharing with you all the tools that I have used!

I've included all the aspects of what a mom needs to organize a home and homeschool. I have found it best to keep everything I need in one binder so I always know where to look for information. (If you prefer your home and homeschool records to be separate, you can use smaller binders and designate separate sections. It's really up to you!)

Also, I've included a flash drive with a template for many of the documents, so you can print more of subject matter included in the planner. (The list of documents on the flash drive is listed below. Please don't make copies of any of the items on the flash drive to give or sell to others. Thank you!)

Each section has information on how to use the documents. I'd encourage you to pray and seek the Lord for clear direction as you plan your family's days. Spend time in God's Word and in prayer each morning to start your day off right.

There are so many great activities and options today for homeschoolers. Seek His will before committing to any activity or before buying curriculum. I'd recommend starting with the goal setting section as you begin your new school year. Seek the Lord as to what needs to be your focus for the new year. This will help you to avoid committing to things that, although good, don't really fit with what your family needs.

May the Lord bless you as you seek Him for clear direction in your home and homeschool!

Kris

© 2017 Kris M. Cox

Documents on the Flash Drive

(Download documents, and print more copies if needed.)

- Emergency information and important contacts
- Meal planning (with grocery list)
- Chore lists
- Health records
- To do list- for home, school, personal and other
- Family goal setting
- Individual student evaluation and goal setting
- Priority assessment sheet
- Record keeping guide
 - Record of curriculum used
 - Field trip plans
 - Books read
 - Volunteer record
- Weekly assignment sheets
- Scheduling templates
- Record-keeping grading sheet - see explanation below
- Report card templates
- Informal learning style evaluation with tips for teaching
- Brainstorming ideas for future
- Expense reports and receipts
- Spiritual journal and Prayer journal

Information on Record-keeping grading sheet: The record-keeping grading sheet is an excel spreadsheet which automatically calculates a letter grade for your children as you insert points they've earned on each assignment for each subject. Note that there are several tabs on the bottom of the spreadsheet, one for each subject. (You can change the names of the subjects to fit what your child is studying.) The spreadsheet is protected in the areas where there are formulas, to prevent anyone from accidentally deleting a formula.